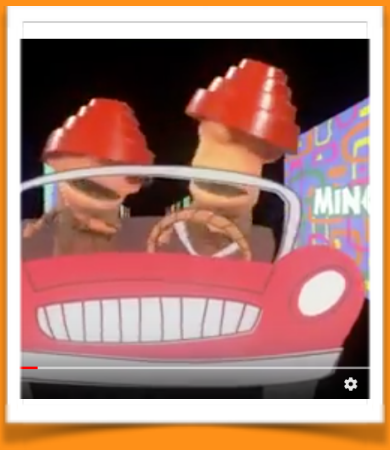
"They bring God's messages, each called an oracle"

THE PROPHETS

Life as God's chosen people wasn't always easy. The Israelites struggled to keep the covenant. They struggled when facing danger and opposing forces. And often these struggles led them to worship foreign gods and foreign leaders as the source of their salvation instead of God. Often while the Israelites were deep in the worship of foreign gods, the true God would send a messenger, called a prophet, to speak God's word for his people. The prophets brought messages of salvation, and of certain destruction if Israel didn't turn back from their false gods. They brought renewed faith in the covenant the Israelites had made with God, and encouraged the Israelites when they struggled to keep faith. Many of their messages are preserved for us in the Bible.



Talk about it: In Kids' Faith we learned that there are 17 books recording the acts of the prophets in the Bible. Can you name them all?
